Construction To Start on EE Building

Groundbreaking for the first engineering facility to be built at Auburn in more than 20 years will take place in the next couple of months. A four-story electrical engineering building will be financed mainly by state bonds approved by the legislature in 1978 and recently sold. Bids are expected to be approved at the March 15 meeting of the Auburn Board of Trustees.

While the new facility will be primarily for electrical engineering, its classrooms and auditorium will be available to other engineering students. In addition, space vacated by electrical engineering will provide room for other programs to expand when the building is completed in 1984.

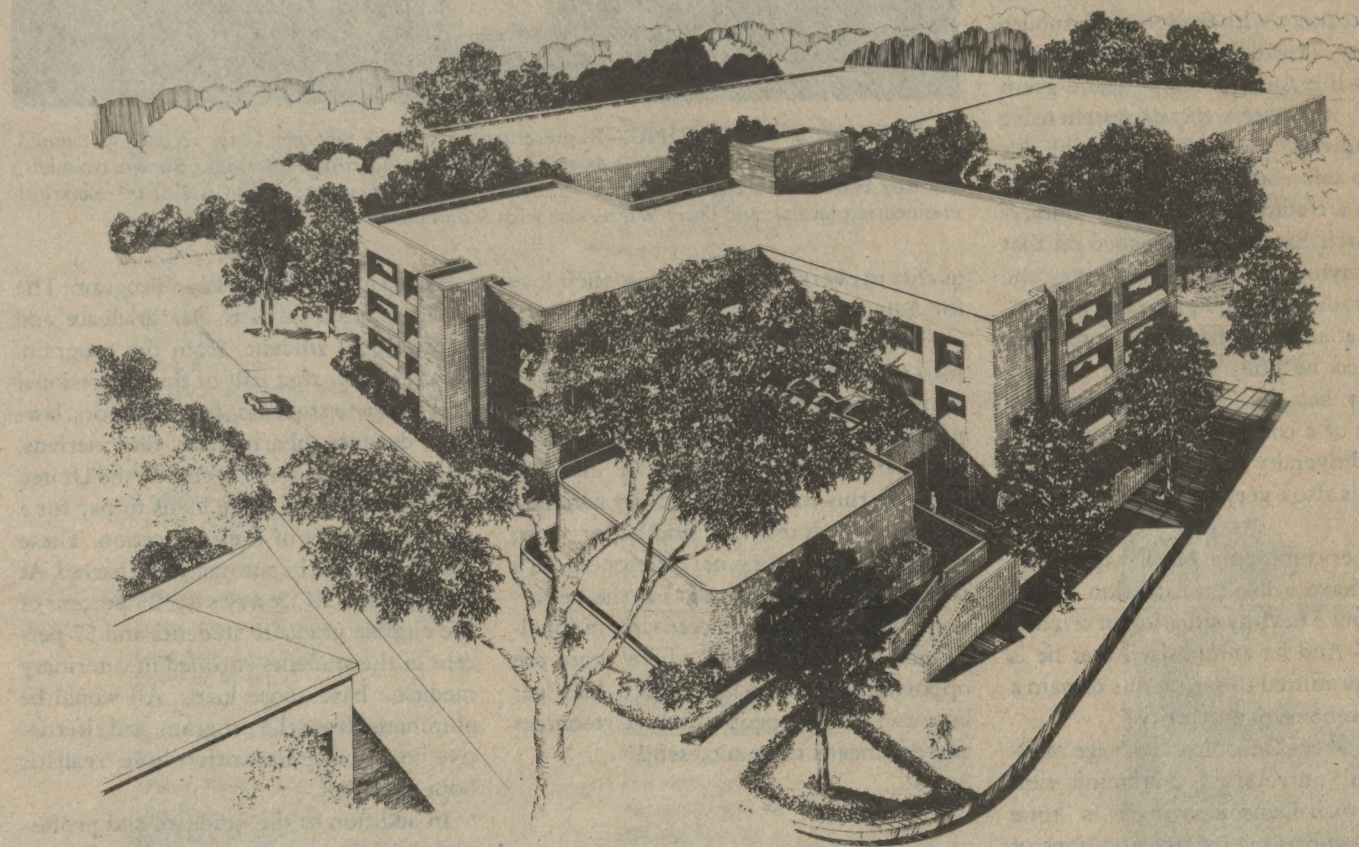

The new building will be concrete with brick veneer, compatible with other buildings on Tiger Street where it will be located. Its 96,000 gross square feet of floor space will provide laboratories, classrooms, a study room, and offices for the department head and faculty as well as a 300-seat auditorium which can be sectioned into two classrooms.

The building will stand on the site until recently occupied by the campus mailroom and stockroom of the physical plant, which have been relocated.

The new electrical engineering building was the first priority established for the School of Engineering in a special study done in 1979 by the consulting firm of Dober and Associates.

1981 Annual Giving Gifts Increase By 67 Percent

When the books were closed on 1981 gifts to Auburn Annual Giving (AAG), the totals indicated a significant increase—both in the amount of money given and in the number of people making those gifts. Gifts to AAG last year totaled $2,533,541.56. That sum is an increase of more than $1 million over the amount given to Annual Giving in 1980. The number of people making gifts also showed a significant increase. In 1980, 3877 contributors sent their checks or gave stock, land, etc., to the program. In 1981 that number increased to 4,336. The average gift also increased. In 1980 the average gift was $392.32. In 1981 it had risen to $584.30.

Design for New Electrical Engineering Building

Through the Auburn Annual Giving Program (now in its 18th year), alumni and friends of the university have given more than $10.3 million to Auburn for its academic and scholarship programs. Designated gifts have gone to every department and program on campus. Undesignated funds have given the university the opportunity to apply the money where it was most needed. In addition undesignated funds have paid for 17 Alumni Professorships and 40 Alumni Academic Scholarships.

The listing of the contributors to Annual Giving for 1981 begins on page 12.

Trustees Support President At Special Meeting

At a special meeting on February 19, the Auburn Board of Trustees reaffirmed its support of President H. Hanly Funderburk, following the failure of a confidence vote of the Auburn faculty a week earlier. On February 11, the general faculty of the university (which included technical staff and administrators as well as teaching faculty) failed to pass a vote of confidence in the leadership of President Funderburk. The vote was 416 to 455 with 66 members voting "present" rather than "yes" or "no."

The vote took place as the result of a petition started by faculty who view the recently established Trustee plan for evaluation of the Auburn administration as unsatisfactory. Last fall the faculty completed an evaluation of the president and presented the results to the Board of Trustees on December 2. The results of that survey were kept confidential until February 9, when the faculty senate of the University voted to make the results public. On that survey, the majority of the faculty ranked President Funderburk's leadership poor except in the area of financial management.

The Trustees responded to the faculty evaluation on January 27 with a plan for using outside consultants to evaluate the university administration every three to five years with the first evaluation being completed before the end of the 1982-83 school year. (See details on page 6). The recent faculty survey would be one part of that evaluation. Some members of the faculty felt the Trustees were ignoring the faculty survey and thus began the petition for a faculty meeting at which to hold a vote of confidence.

The day before the faculty vote, the Auburn Alumni Association Board of Directors issued a statement calling for more time for President Funderburk "to establish himself fully as the president of Auburn University," and to give the "evaluation plan recommended by the Board of Trustees a chance to work." Following the vote the Alumni Board of Directors decided to hold a special meeting on campus the same day the Trustees met to reach to the faculty vote. (See a related story on page 3). All former presidents of the Alumni Association were invited to attend this meeting.

At the Trustees' meeting, ten of the twelve members (neither Trustee Bob Harris nor Gov. Fob James voted) approved a resolution offered by Frank P. Samford, Jr., which said the board "fully endorses the efforts made by President Funderburk to address the needs of Auburn University and hereby reaffirms our confidence in his ability to provide strong and effective leadership for Auburn University."

Before that move, however, Mr. Samford said that he had "felt for some time that the formal board meetings are not very productive," adding that he had the "feeling that large numbers of the faculty don't feel they have access to the board." He suggested that the faculty, alumni and others interested in Auburn have the right to speak to the Trustees in an hour-long session preceding each regularly scheduled board meeting. That suggestion was put into a motion and unanimously passed. (The first meeting at which the faculty would be able to meet with the board will be the mid-March meeting scheduled for AUM.)

Other members of the board noted the faculty's concern with the future of Auburn University. Trustee John Denson pointed out that while Auburn may be a land-grant university it is "also a very comprehensive quality university and I don't think it's proper to talk about Auburn University's return to a traditional land-grant university." Morris Savage also touched on that subject, saying that when he hears the phrase "traditional land-grant University," he's "not at all sure what that means." But he stressed he does know that Auburn University has the "varying courses and programs of a comprehensive university. Auburn University is a land-grant university but it is also a very fine comprehensive university."

In further comments, Mr. Savage asked, "Can we have a healthy situation on Ag Hill without a healthy situation in arts and sciences?" And he emphasized that he is "deeply committed to seeing this remain a fine comprehensive university."

Both Trustees Denson and Savage mentioned the university's communication problem, with Denson saying it is "time for voices to be lowered and the lines of communication opened."

Congressman Bill Nichols noted the faculty "misapprehension that the board is not serious about this evaluation," referring to their planned evaluation of the administration. Henry Steagall stressed that the evaluation plan of the board "was a good faith effort on the part of the board," and emphasized that the committee would be "willing to meet with the faculty senate representatives to consider modification." Michael McCartney, who along with Trustees Steagall and Denson served on the committee to form the Trustee evaluation plan, stressed that the Trustees "intend to keep that commitment and intend to be very diligent about it."

Before the Board meeting was concluded, Alumni President Sam Kirkland presented a resolution from the Alumni Board of Directors to be added to the minutes of the meeting. That resolution called for "each member of the University family to rally behind President Funderburk as he leads Auburn University," and at the same time urged "the Board of Trustees, Dr. Funderburk and the faculty to seriously address the major concerns of the faculty."

In response to the board, President Funderburk spoke of his awareness of the "concerns of the faculty for the future of Auburn University. I share their desire for quality in every program. I share their love for Auburn.

"I call upon the faculty to help us find ways of addressing mutual concerns. Where there are misunderstandings, let's sit in the proper forum and clear the air; where there are changes that can be made to improve this institution and our administrative procedures, let's find better ways; where there are personal differences, let's concentrate on the results for the betterment of Auburn and proceed with rationality and common sense; where there are opportunities for achievement, let's get busy and find the people and the resources and the means to be successful."

Reagan Budget Cuts Reduce Loans, Aid To Students

If Reagan's budget cuts for student financial aid in higher education are passed by Congress, college and professional students across the country are going to be really hurt when it comes to paying for their education, according to Larry Ridgeway, director of financial aid at Auburn. The only alternative for many students will be dropping out of college, going to a junior college near home, or entering a technical school. Those colleges predicted to be most affected by the Reagan proposals will be large, non-urban universities with a significant graduate and professional enrollment. And, of course, that description fits Auburn extremely well.

As to just what the proposals will mean to Auburn, Director Ridgeway and his staff have done some investigation. The total loss to Auburn students (and Auburn University) could be as high as $7.5 million and affect as many as 3,500 Auburn students.

Areas significant to Auburn are detailed below.

Guaranteed Student Loan Program: The Reagan proposal is to bar graduate and professional students from the program. Figures show that half of the professional and graduate students (future doctors, lawyers, dentists, pharmacists, veterinarians, engineering professors, etc.) in the United States depend on those loans to pay for a significant part of their education. These students would be automatically barred. At Auburn, Mr. Ridgeway says, 23 percent of the eligible graduate students and 57 percent of the students enrolled in veterinary medicine have those loans. All would be eliminated from the program, and alternative loan programs offer little realistic hope for relief.

In addition to the graduate and professional students who would be affected, 6,566 Auburn undergraduate students currently receive Guaranteed Student Loans. The Reagan proposals would eliminate half of them from the program, particularly students who are independent of their families or who are married with a working spouse. A third arm to the GSLP proposal would require a ten percent processing fee for the loans when they are obtained (the origination fee) and require repayment of loans at market rate two years after leaving school.

As a result of the GSLP proposals, Mr. Ridgeway predicts that many students will forego the pursuit of a college or professional education. "The most needy student from an impoverished background," he says, "would be the most burdened by these requirements."

Basic Opportunity Grant: The Reagan proposal to reduce that program by 40 percent will eliminate 1,150 Auburn students. And, Mr. Ridgeway says, the loss to Auburn could be even larger because of the elimination of the number of children in college from the eligibility formula.

Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant: If that program is eliminated as Reagan proposes, 140 Auburn students will lose $120,000.

College Work-Study Program: The proposed reduction of work-study funds by 25 percent would cut out part-time jobs for 225 students. In addition to the hardship such an elimination would cause the students are the problems it would cause the many Auburn departments where those students work. In these days of staff cutbacks, many departments, such as the library, depend on work-study students to operate.

State Student Incentive Grant Program: The elimination of this program will hurt Auburn least because the state legislature has always failed to provide money to match federal dollars and hence adequately fund it. But even so, 67 Auburn students will lose $300 grants totaling $20,100.

As a result of the cutbacks, Mr. Ridgeway says "it would be very difficult for many of these students to arrange the alternative financing necessary to continue in school here. Veterinary Medicine students and those from middle income families stand to be hurt most."

Should Congress accept the proposals in the Reagan budget regarding financial aid, Mr. Ridgeway says, he would "expect significant enrollment declines over the next several years." Students and parents who foresee devastating results on their chance or their child's chance for a college or professional education, Mr. Ridgeway says, may want to write to their Congressman because Congress has to approve the changes before they become fact.

Faculty Notes

Jay Humburg, associate professor of large animal surgery and medicine, has become a diplomate of the American Board of Veterinary Practitioners. Dr. Humburg, whose area of speciality is equine practice, received the M.S. from Auburn where he was an instructor from 1958 to 1962. After being in private practice and serving with a Kansas State AID team at Ahmadu Bello University in Nigeria 1968-1971, he joined an equine practice in Florida in 1972 and a year later moved to rejoin the Auburn faculty. . . .

In February Prof. Peter Harzem of the Psychology Department organized the first of a series of international symposia on the science of behavior to be held at the National University of Mexico in Mexico City. Fourteen scholars from the U.S., Belgium, Mexico, England, France, and Columbia discussed their work related to the language of behavior. Prof. Harzem, founder of the department of psychology at the University College of Northern Wales, has been on the Auburn faculty for four years. His contact with the University of Mexico began several years ago when he was invited to present a series of talks there. . . .

Dr. J. David Irwin '61, professor and head of the Electrical Engineering Department, has been named a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers. Dr. Irwin, president of the Industrial Electronics Society, was cited by the IEEE board for his contributions to industrial electronics, control instrumentation, and engineering education.

Grace M. Wright, a senior accountant in the Department of Animal and Dairy Science, has been recognized for 33 years of service to the School of Agriculture. Mrs. Wright recently retired from the staff. . . .

Robert D. Felner, associate professor of psychology, has been invited to serve as special consultant to a study panel on children's mental health to be conducted by the Park Foundation. Dr. Felner is director of Auburn's graduate program in clinical psychology after joining the faculty last June. He earlier taught at the University of Rochester and at Yale. . . .

Dr. Stanley P. Wilson, vice president of agriculture, home economics, and veterinary medicine, is new president of the Southern Association of Agricultural Scientists. The group is composed of more than 1,000 scientists at land-grant universities in 13 Southern states. Dr. Wilson joined the Auburn faculty in 1975 as associate director of the Agricultural Experiment Station. He became vice president in 1980. He had been at Purdue since 1961 before coming to Auburn. Dr. Wilson is listed in American Men of Science, Who's Who in the Midwest, and the Dictionary of International Biography. . . .

Drs. S.A. Edgar, R. Rodriguez-Kabana, and Paul A. Backman are the first three recipients of the new Director's Research Award to be given to members of the Agricultural Experiment Station staff. The awards recognize the faculty members' research contributions. Dr. Edgar is a professor in the Department of Poultry Science, Dr. Rodriguez-Kabana is a professor in the Department of Botany, Plant Pathology, and Microbiology, and Dr. Backman is an associate professor in the Department of Botany, Plant Pathology, and Microbiology. . . .

Dr. Charles M. Darling has been appointed assistant dean of the School of Pharmacy. He will have major administrative duties in the areas of admissions, graduate, and research areas. Dr. Darling joined the Auburn faculty in 1969 as Alumni Associate Professor of Medical Chemistry. Earlier he practiced pharmacy in his home town of Olive Branch, Miss., before earning a doctorate and working with the A.H. Robins Company as senior research chemist. . . .

The School of Agriculture recently honored four members of its faculty by inducting them into its 25-Year Club, recognizing their 25 years of service to Auburn. The four so recognized are Dr. Claude Moore, professor and head of the Department of Poultry Science; Staley E. Fincher, farm foreman of the Department of Poultry Science; Dr. Edward M. Clark, associate professor of the Department of Botany, Plant Pathology, and Microbiology; and Dr. Earl Wiggins, professor emeritus of the Department of Animal and Dairy Science. . . .

Dr. Samuel T. Coker is acting head of the Department of Pharmacal Services in the School of Pharmacy. He will continue teaching and research in pharmacology and toxicology. . . .

Dr. Robert Allen Voitle, new dean of the School of Agriculture, recently received the "Golden Feather Award" from the poultry department at Cal Polytechnic which he headed before coming to Auburn in January. He is one of six people to receive the department's award in its 51-year existence.

Ag/ Home Ec/ Vet Day Scheduled April 16

The annual introduction of Auburn's Schools of Veterinary Medicine, Home Economics, and Agriculture to high school and junior college students is scheduled for April 16.

The event acquaints the students and their parents as well as high school counselors with the career opportunities available in the three schools. Guests get tours of the schools and a chance to meet students and faculty.

Alumni Board Meets, Supports President

Members of the Alumni Board of Directors and eight former presidents of the Alumni Association met on campus February 19 to consider the background leading to the faculty vote on confidence in President Hanly Funderburk and to issue a statement of support for the president.

Alumni President L.J. (Sam) Kirkland '49 presided. Joining the alumni leaders for 15-minute segments of the meeting were President Hanly Funderburk, Student Government President Rip Britton, and several members of the Auburn faculty.

First on the agenda was President Funderburk, who answered the group's questions about the current situation.

He was followed by Dr. John Kuykendall, head and associate professor of religion and president of the general faculty, who explained the operations of the two faculty organizations at Auburn—the faculty senate and the general faculty. He also listed the events leading up to the faculty confidence vote on February 11.

SGA President Rip Britton discussed President Funderburk's relationship with student leaders and commented on student perceptions of the president's administration.

Dr. Martha Solomon, associate professor of speech communication and chairman of the faculty committee for the evaluation of the president, reviewed the committee's procedures for preparing the form for the faculty evaluation of the president, for submitting the questions to the president and the board of trustees, for administering the evaluation and for compiling the results.

Finally Dr. S. Allen Edgar, professor of poultry science, and Dr. J. Wayne Flynt, professor and head of history, discussed reasons pro and con an immediate evaluation of Dr. Funderburk's leadership of Auburn during the past 22 months. Dr. Flynt spoke in favor of immediate evaluation while Dr. Edgar said Dr. Funderburk had not been given an adequate chance as president.

Alumni leaders asked questions of each participant and then each made his own comments to the group before Alumni President Kirkland appointed a committee to write a resolution for the group to present to the Board of Trustees later in the day.

The resolution reiterated the group's earlier support of President Funderburk as delineated in the February 10 statement.

That statement read:

We the Board of Directors of the Auburn Alumni Association believe that the President of Auburn University should be judged strictly on his own personal achievements. He should not be held responsible for decisions made outside of his area of control. It is not his responsibility to appropriate State funds for the university. This is ultimately the responsibility of the people of Alabama through elected officials. We believe that much of the criticism of Doctor Hanly Funderburk relates directly to limited State funds allocated to Auburn University, not only during the 22 months that he has served as President, but dating back at least six years. We are all aware of the negative effect that this could have on our fine students and faculty. The condition of the economy is also directly related to funding for Auburn and all of education in Alabama.

During Doctor Funderburk's tenure, he has balanced the budget which included, upon his arrival, a 2 million dollar deficit along with two years of proration. This had to be an extremely difficult task for him.

He also persuaded the Board of Trustees to approve what could be the largest percentage tuition increase by a public university in modern times. This was a significant achievement.

He has played a significant role in the Auburn Generations Fund. The response and confidence in Auburn during this fund drive has been exceptional. Over 24 million dollars has already been committed toward the campaign goal of 61.7 million dollars. We are fully confident that with the continued support of all Auburn men and women we will achieve this goal. If so, it would be the most successful campaign ever by a public university in the South and among the most successful in the nation. Up until this time, over 65 percent of the faculty and employees of Auburn University have committed more than $630,000 to the campaign. This is exceptional, especially during trying conditions.

We are very aware of the tremendous loyalty of our faculty. Auburn Alumni appreciate those who have been willing to stay at Auburn in favor of greater financial positions elsewhere. We share many of the same concerns of the faculty. But, we believe that many of our problems originated several years ago and were cast off on Doctor Funderburk to solve. Obviously he is solving some of these problems.

We do not feel that Doctor Hanly Funderburk has had nearly the proper amount of time to establish

Here and There—

Somewhere East of the Hyacinths

By Jerry Roden, Jr. '46

Today is February 20, 1982, and spring has come early to the eastern outskirts of Stonewall, Alabama, where my wife Rebecca, her dog Rambler, a stray cat named Boots, and I live in a house at the end of the road amidst assorted deer, rabbits, possum, quail, crows, squirrels, wild turkey, hummingbirds, eagles, and owls. Our house faces more or less north and toward the road which winds up to Jack and Bobbie

Allen's on the right, Cal and Dora James' Sedgely Farm on the left, and then on past Zeke and Bernice Stokely's on the right before it ends—as abruptly as it began—on Lee County 35. From that junction one need drive only slightly more than three country miles to the heart of Stonewall and a bit more than seven miles to the center of either Auburn or Opelika.

But on days like today, I often like to pretend that the world in front of us ends at the top of the hill just before you get to Jack and Bobbie's place and that the world behind us extends no farther than the rim of trees across a meadow and atop another hill about three hundred yards distant. Most of today my mind has focused on an even more circumscribed world: a little circle in front of the house ringed with border grass, in which a bed of daffodils floats a golden cover; a clump of hyacinths displays dainty white, deep pink, and dark purple splashes; and one lonely crocus arrests the eye with two delicately white magnificent blossoms. The daffodils occupy the northern center of the circle, the hyacinths the southwestern segment, and the crocus the southeast. Sort of in between the three, two small redbud trees display crimson buds.

At first, I kept wandering from hyacinths to daffodils to crocus and back and forth with no thought in mind but just a deep and reverent sense of the miracle of the earth's reawakening under the gentle beams of a Southern sun. But then somewhere in the back of my mind, an unformulated but disturbing thought began advancing and receding, rising and subsiding, expanding and contracting until I could bear it no more, until I knew that I must leave the enchanted circle, pick up pen, and write until I had formulated one clear comment upon a forbidden topic: the present discontent upon the campus at Auburn University.

Almost everyone knows, of course, the central facts which reveal the present discontent and indicate some efforts to dispel it: On February 11, the Auburn faculty voted 455-416, with 66 abstentions, to defeat a resolution stating confidence in Dr. Hanly Funderburk as Auburn University president. On February 19, ten of the twelve members of the Auburn University Board of Trustees gave a vote of confidence to President Funderburk and asked administrators, faculty, and staff "to join the efforts of this board and President Funderburk in facing the issues with a spirit of harmony, professionalism, and cooperation." On the same day, the Board of Directors of the Auburn Alumni Association adopted a resolution urging "each member of the University family to rally behind President Funderburk as he leads" Auburn University.

On the surface, the resolutions and other comments from the AU Board of Trustees and the Alumni Association Board of Directors not only support President Funderburk but also provide some basis for negotiating faculty grievances. Some comments from President Funderburk himself indicate not only a firm intention to provide strong leadership but also a determination to establish better communication with the faculty. Thus, many Auburn supporters may assume that the present discontent is well on the way to being laid to rest. But I am not at all sure that such is the case.

Before stating the reasons for my uncertainty, I wish to reiterate my previous statements of respect for Dr. Hanly Funderburk as an intelligent, determined, and energetic gentleman of unimpeachable integrity. And, I wish to acknowledge a similar respect for the intelligence, dedication, and integrity of most members of the Auburn Board of Trustees and of the Board of Directors of the Auburn Alumni Association. Furthermore, I think it possible for Auburn to resume its progress toward becoming a great university under Dr. Funderburk's leadership.

However, I fear that such progress cannot occur until the president and the trustees address directly, fully, and equitably the source of the faculty discontent. Perhaps, the trustees, alumni leaders, and President Funderburk laid the groundwork for such dealing with the faculty in those meetings on February 19, and they may at this moment be working quietly toward genuine reconciliation. But if so, it is unfortunate that the fact has not surfaced in any of the press releases and current community comments on the subject. And even more unfortunate are some bits of evidence which suggest that neither the majority of the two boards nor President Funderburk has yet grasped the precise nature of faculty concern.

Rightly or wrongly, a considerable portion of the faculty—remember that the negative vote was 455-416—has reached the conclusion that President Funderburk, several members of the Board of Trustees, and a number of alumni leaders do not understand clearly the difference between a technical college and a university. Further, they fear that Auburn University is in the process of retrogressing to Alabama Polytechnic Institute. And a goodly number of them are so dedicated to the ideal of a true university that they will not cease questioning until their fears have allayed with very specific concrete responses and actions.

At this moment, I am not at all certain whether the problem at Auburn University lies in simple, natural human misunderstandings, in some fundamental differences in educational philosophy, or in some combination of the two. But one thing does seem quite clear: The best interest of Auburn University requires some quiet, honest, direct communication between the administration and the faculty with solid support for that kind of interaction from the trustees and from alumni leaders. Faculty concern about the future of Auburn as a university is too widespread, too deep, too intelligent, too genuine, and too unselfish to be swept away with a few deft brushes of public relations rhetoric.

Of course, questions concerning the precise nature, function, and requirements of a university are far too profound for one like me to resolve on a trek east of the hyacinths to the lonely crocus, but not, I think, too difficult for the best intellects of Auburn to resolve during the forthcoming blossoming of forsythia, azalea, dogwood, and wisteria—provided that all those responsible put both heart and minds fully to the awesome task.

Unusual Achievements

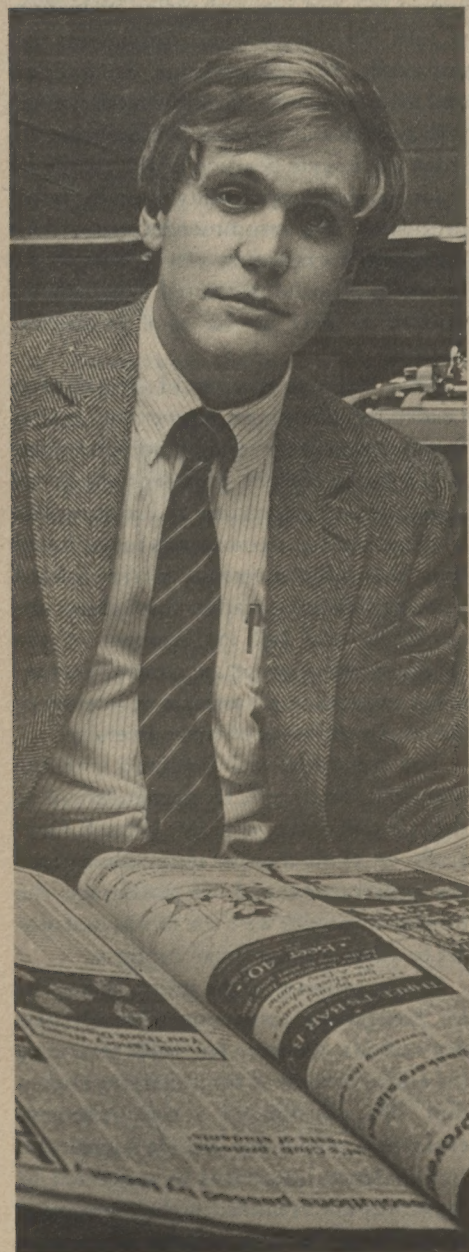

Steele '78 Press Secretary for Senator Heflin

By Judy Wagner

Lauren C. Steele, press secretary for Senator Howell Heflin of Alabama, once referred to public relations as "the bastard child of journalism." Little did he know before graduating from Auburn in 1978 that public relations would be his career.

Lauren, in a recent visit to Auburn, spoke to a journalism class about his duties as press secretary. Among the most important, he named press relations and the ability of a press secretary and the press to have a "symbiotic relationship." Lauren also found it important to establish a code of ethics with the press that would enable him to have a successful working and social relationship with them.

Lauren's other duties include writing speeches for the Senator along with taping weekly radio shows about Heflin that are broadcast on many of the 140 radio stations in Alabama. He also writes a weekly column and a newsletter in order to keep in touch with Heflin's constituents because, as Lauren says, his main job is to get his boss re-elected.

Lauren, in his four years at Auburn, was news reporter for The Plainsman and later went on to intern for Alabama Public Television in Montgomery. He was appointed as press secretary by Senator Heflin after working on Heflin's campaign. Lauren was recently re-elected president of the U.S. Press Secretary Association. He is married to Fran Stromei '78.

Alumna's Book Published By Oxford Press, Nominated for Pulitzer Prize

By Kaye Lovvorn

Getting a book published these days is no mean achievement, and getting a book published by the Oxford University Press has always been an achievement of note. But getting a dissertation published by the Oxford University Press and having it reviewed everywhere from the New York Times to The New Republic and nominated for a Pulitzer Prize is an accomplishment indeed. And Linda Ott McMurry '68 has done all that with her George Washington Carver, Scientist and Symbol.

Dr. McMurry, who received her Ph.D. from Auburn in 1976, is now an associate professor at North Carolina State and busy preparing her master's thesis on Monroe T. Work, a statistician for Booker T. Washington at Tuskegee Institute, for publication in the LSU Press biographical series.

In her very readable book on the famed Peanut Man, Dr. McMurry shows that while much of the research done by Dr. Carver (the title was honorary) would fail to meet today's scientific standards—indeed failed to meet those of his own day—his intelligence, vision, and ability to inspire and encourage both blacks and whites in a time when blacks had little choice and few opportunities deserve all the honor that any lack of scientific procedure might take from him today. The hundreds of products that he manufactured from peanuts and sweet potatoes brought him few financial rewards and in light of history had little practical benefit for he seemed to lose interest once he had satisfied himself that something could be done. Yet he became such a symbol of black accomplishment that long before his death in 1943, he was well known all over the country and could count among his friends both blacks and whites from all sections of the country, from poor black farmers to wealthy white politicians and industrialists.

Alumni readers will be interested in Dr. Carver's Auburn associations around the turn of the century. As director of the Tuskegee Experiment Station, the first black experiment station in the U.S., he maintained contact with the land-grant scientists 16 miles up the road. Two of them became his friends. Dr. Carver aided F.S. Earle in his study of Alabama fungi, and fellow Iowa State alumnus C.A. Cary frequently helped Dr. Carver with veterinary problems as there was no veterinarian at Tuskegee. His friendship with the founder of Auburn's School of Veterinary Medicine led to Dr. Carver's history-making invitation to address the Alabama Livestock Association in 1903. After Dr. Carver spoke, Association President Cary followed him to the podium to urge members to visit Tuskegee. Although hesitant, Dr. Cary had offered the invitation for the black scientist to speak to the all-white farmers group, he said, "as someone must sometime, somewhere."

Of course Dr. Carver's talents drew attention from much farther away than Birmingham where that meeting was held. Indeed, two of the most famous names in American history respected him—Henry Ford and Thomas Edison. Aviator Charles Lindbergh recorded in his journals the Carver-Ford connection, and along about the time of World War I, Edison sent one of his lieutenants, a Mr. Hutchinson, to Tuskegee to offer Carver a job on his research staff. That Mr. Hutchinson was probably another Auburn connection, as Miller Reese Hutchinson '11 was Edison's assistant.

In today's public relations-based society, many would envy Dr. Carver's abilities along those lines. Yet Dr. McMurry concludes that in becoming a symbol of progress and the New South, Dr. Carver lost sight of many of his original goals and the lessons he would have preferred to have left as his legacy (such as the importance of the balance of nature, of conservation, and of self-sufficiency) were lost in the creation of the myth of the great scientist.

In her book, Dr. McMurry humanizes the myth and provides an appealing portrait of an accomplished and unusual man who spent most of his life just down the road from Auburn.

himself fully as the president of Auburn University. We need to give him that opportunity. We need to give him our support. We need to give the evaluation plan recommended by the Board of Trustees a chance to work.

Therefore, we appeal to all who care for this great University to evaluate Doctor Funderburk's record as President with a strong sense of fair play. Tolerance and fair play have been inherent in Auburn tradition for 126 years.

Finally, we doubt that there is a more productive University in America than Auburn, based on available resources. This does not mean that we do not have a long way to go. But with all Auburn people working together, we believe that our University has the potential to reach tremendous heights.

The February 19 statement restated support of the president and emphasized the value of the faculty:

We recognize that at Auburn we are fortunate to have a faculty of outstanding talent and intellectual diversity, and that it is natural for the faculty to engage in spirited debate on all subjects of importance to the University. We are very proud of our faculty and we urge the Board of Trustees, Dr. Funderburk, and the faculty to seriously address the major concerns of the faculty.

President Funderburk assumed office at a turbulent time in the history of Auburn. In the ensuing few months, he has devoted his attention and his priorities to placing our house in sound fiscal order. We believe this is the overriding first priority for Auburn, and we support the president's decision to concentrate his initial efforts in the financial area.

In depressed economic times, it is important for each Auburn constituency to look to the needs of the greater University community. Accordingly, we call upon each member of the University family to rally behind President Funderburk as he leads Auburn University.

Trustee Committee Report on Process For Presidential Evaluation

The Constitution of the State of Alabama has placed in trust final responsibility for total operation and maintenance of Auburn University with the Auburn University Board of Trustees. Part of this trust involves the appointment of a president and other members of the administration to carry out the policies and procedures of the institution. That trust includes constant and recurring evaluation of the president by the board

As the committee appointed by the board, we intend to recommend that the full board review the performance of the president and his administration just as we expect fair and comprehensive evaluation to take place at all levels throughout the university. We acknowledge the interest and proper role the faculty contributes to such an evaluation process. We also acknowledge the unique position of the faculty in regard to their opportunity to evaluate the president. The recommendations of the presidential evaluation survey, completed by the faculty and presented to us, will be utilized as part of the total evaluation process.

The "Annual Review of Presidential Leadership at Auburn University" by the faculty articulates several recommendations to the board and the president which we recognize as constructive and responsible. This committee recommends to the board that the administration strive toward increased communication throughout the university and full involvement of the faculty, where appropriate, through reasonable processes in all matters of interest to the total well being of this university.

The committee has reviewed with the president the specific recommendations as they pertain to the president himself. Generally, we think that the recommendations are constructive and we encourage the president to work with the faculty and others to address these broad concerns.

This committee of the board, chaired by Mr. Steagall and consisting of Mr. McCartney and Mr. Denson, has been reviewing the entire process of administrator evaluation. We recommend a comprehensive evaluation plan using outside consultants and in-depth interviews as suggested by the faculty and endorsed by the Association of Governing Boards. A copy of the proposed plan is attached to this statement.

In essence, this plan provides for a comprehensive administrative evaluation of the president, chancellor, vice presidents, vice chancellors, and other administrators every 3-5 years with the first such review to be completed during the 1982-83 academic year. The president shall prepare early in the process a summary of his administration, identifying weaknesses, plans for improvement, and articulation of his goals for the university in the next 3-5 year period. The board will then appoint one or more consultants of national stature to conduct a thorough review. This review shall consist of public notice, extensive interviews with all constituencies of the university, and a thorough assessment of all areas of interest to the welfare of Auburn University. Details of this review will remain confidential, as is professionally appropriate, but the board shall use the results to assist the administration in developing a broad set of goals to be achieved in the interval prior to the next formal evaluation or earlier as appropriate.

This committee expresses its appreciation to the faculty for its recommendations and professional utilization of the presidential survey. The constructive recommendations in the survey document and our proposed comprehensive evaluation process will ensure the improvement of Auburn's quality characteristics. We are convinced that the future for Auburn University is bright because of the mutual desire of all associated with Auburn to work together for its betterment.

A Plan For Evaluation of Administrators At Auburn University

This outline sketches a plan which could be followed in the evaluation of administrators at Auburn University. The plan is one which recognizes widespread interest in Auburn University's future and seeks the input of a broadly representative sample from Auburn's many constituencies. The design is such that it can be managed without excessive expenditure of time, money and energy, yet will yield information vital to effective operation of the University.

This proposal is divided into two sections: (1) a general description of the assessment exercise with an indication of purposes, and (2) a delineation of procedures to be followed.

A. General Description

1. Decision to evaluate. At the President's request, the Vice Chairman of the Board of Trustees on August 26, 1981, appointed a three-member committee for the purpose of developing a plan to evaluate University administrators.
2. Purposes of the evaluation.
 - a. To review overall goals and direction of Auburn University
 - b. To review and improve the governance of Auburn University
 - c. To assist in clarifying scope and the complexity of responsibility of the specified positions
 - d. To review the relationship between the Board of Trustees and the management of Auburn University
3. Schedule for evaluation. Formal evaluation will occur on a regular three-to five-year cycle. (Such a cycle is consistent with those used at other institutions, as indicated by John W. Nason in Presidential Assessment.)¹ The initial evaluation, begun by the faculty, will be concluded by the end of the 1982-83 academic year. Thereafter a regular cycle will prevail.

B. The Procedure

1. Evaluation of the President.
 - a. Statement of stewardship. As soon as practicable (and in each relevant year of the evaluation cycle, thereafter) the President will prepare for the Board Administrator Evaluation Committee a written statement which summarizes problems faced and achievements made during the past three to five years of this administration, identifies weaknesses, and proposes a plan for improving the institution in the future. The statement of self assessment will be utilized by the committee and its consulting staff in conducting the evaluation.

- b. Appointment of a consultant (or consultants). On behalf of the Board, the major portion of the formal evaluation will be conducted by a person (or persons) of national stature, widely recognized and respected as a leader in the administration of higher education.
- c. Public notification. Prior to commencing its evaluation, the Board of Trustees shall make public announcement of the fact.
- d. Duration of evaluation. The formal assessment of the administration will occur during a three-month period of the 1982-83 academic year (or relevant year in the regular cycle). The consultant(s) will spend substantial time in Alabama interviewing various constituencies to be involved in the evaluation, and upon completion will make a final report to the full Board of Trustees at their next regular meeting. The President will be advised of the results during the period between completion and the report to the Board.
- e. Sources of information. The consultant(s) shall collect, by way of the structured interview process (individually or in small groups), information from representatives of the following constituencies:

- (1) Each member of the Board of Trustees
- (2) Faculty Senate leaders and a cross section of faculty members including the report of the Faculty Senate Evaluation Committee dated December 2, 1981
- (3) Deans
- (4) Student leaders (S.G.A. officers and others)
- (5) Administrative officers
- (6) Nonacademic and professional staff members
- (7) Legislative leaders
- (8) Alumni leaders, including current and former Auburn Alumni Association presidents and Auburn University Foundation Board members
- (9) Others, as appropriate. (Might include such persons as the chairman of the Alabama Commission on Higher Education, accreditation associative executives, industrial or community leaders senior administrative peers at other institutions and the like). Here the consultant(s) could select a few individuals representing organizations which have significant relationships with Auburn University.
- (10) Any person expressing a desire to participate would be permitted to do so through submission of a written statement to the consultant(s).

- f. Areas of inquiry. It is anticipated that the overall evaluation would encompass a broad range of topics. Specifically, the initial assessment effort would consider (but not be limited to) the following areas:

Alumnalities

James F. Reeves '10 now lives in the Eufaula Geriatric Center.

Frank L. Hardy '33 lives in Birmingham where he is chairman and CEO of two firms, the Hardy Corp. and Air & Piping, Inc. These companies specialize in commercial and industrial mechanical contracting of air conditioning and heating systems, industrial mechanical work, plumbing, and sheet metal and piping prefabrication.

Arthur Cooper '39 and his wife, Dorothy Summers Cooper '39, have joined Shamrock Real Estate of Auburn as residential sales agents. Mrs. Cooper was a realtor associate with Stan Weber Associates of New Orleans, one of the top five largest real estate companies with more than 1200 agents. Dr. Cooper worked for Stan Weber for two years. They moved from Auburn in 1970 to Washington, D.C., where he became deputy administrator of the Agricultural Research Service. In 1972, the ARS was reorganized and he was appointed regional administrator of the Southern Region which comprised the 13 Southeastern states, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, with headquarters in New Orleans. Dr. Cooper received his BS and MS degrees from Auburn and his Ph.D. from Michigan State. The Coopers returned to Auburn in 1980 and are currently active in the Auburn Methodist Church, Saughatchee Country Club, University Club, Cotillion Club, and charter members of the Auburn Arts Association. Dr. Cooper has served as president of the Auburn Kiwanis Club, Auburn chapter of the Alabama Society of Professional Engineers, and the University Club, and is a fellow in the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

James C. Lee, Jr., '40 was recently installed as president of the Birmingham Area Chamber of Commerce, taking office during the Chamber's 94th annual meeting. Mr. Lee is president of the Buffalo Rock-Pepsi Cola Co. and has served as president of the National Pepsi Cola Bottlers Association, the Alabama Bottlers Association, the Metropolitan Development Board and Operation New Birmingham. Mr. Lee has served on Chamber committees and was recently vice president of its industrial development division. Mr. Lee, a WW II Air Force veteran, was named Man of the Year by the beverage industry in 1978.

Charles Dwight Prater '40 has retired from his position of senior scientist and research advisor in the Process Research and Technical Service Division of Mobil Oil Corp. Mr. Prater worked for Mobil for more than 30 years, his Mobil career following a brief stint with physics at the University of Chicago then with the development of radar at the Bartol Foundation. In 1946, Mr. Prater became a research associate at the Johnson Foundation for biophysics at the University of Pennsylvania doing research on bacterial viruses. He received his Ph.D. in biophysics from Penn and joined Mobil in 1951. From 1951 until 1967, Mr. Prater worked his way from senior research physicist to research associate, then was named manager of the Process Research and Development Section at Paulsboro until 1976. In 1972 Mr. Prater received the Alpha Chi Sigma award of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, then in 1977 he was elected to the National Academy of Engineering. Mr. Prater's professional memberships include the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, American Chemical Society, Catalysis Society of North America, Sigma Xi, and Alpha Epsilon Delta. He has more than 60 publications in areas of chemical kinetics, solid state physics of catalysis, heterogeneous catalysis, reactor design, process modeling, applied mathematics, and laboratory automation.

Sabel E. Baum '41 is head of Dixie Engineering Co., Inc., of Birmingham. The company is now in its 30th year and offers advisory service on many of the nation's largest manufacturers of fire protection systems and equipment, filters, fans, incinerators, construction castings, heat recovery systems, and steam producing boilers.

He was named head of the flight dynamics section of the Flight Vehicles and Systems Division in 1968 and head of the engineering analysis branch of the Systems Engineering Division in 1971. In 1979 Dr. Wingate became assistant chief of the systems engineering division. Dr. Wingate had previously worked at Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Co. in West Palm Beach, Fla., from September 1958 to March 1959 as analytical engineer. He had earlier served as an officer in the Army Signal Corps from March 1959 to September 1959. Dr. Wingate has authored 14 technical publications and has received three Group Achievement awards and three Outstanding Performance awards. He and his wife, Audrey, live in Hampton, Va., with their son and daughter.

Capt. J. Austin Yeager '59 has assumed a two-year command of Mt. Mitchell, a National Oceanic and Atmosphere Administration hydrographic ship which conducts surveys determining water depth and locating shoals and reefs. Prior to his appointment Capt. Yeager was chief of the Coastal Hazards Office in the National Ocean Survey.

Paul Hemphill '59 of Atlanta, Ga., has had his novel, Long Gone, accepted for filming. Dustin Hoffman will portray Stud Cantrell, "alcoholic player-manager of a destitute Class D baseball club in the mid-Fifties. I played, somewhat haphazardly, second base for Auburn in 56-57." Mr. Hemphill writes that he stays in touch with the AU players of that time and there is talk of a reunion of the '58 SEC baseball champions.

James D. Wood '60, his wife, Janie, and their 16-year-old son, Jim, Jr., have moved from West Chester, Pa., to Dallas, Tex., where Jim is now special projects manager for Atlas Powder Co., a prominent manufacturer of commercial explosives in both domestic and international markets. Jim's new job has him "heavily involved in the development, engineering, and design of explosive products production facilities." The Woods' married daughter, Liz, remains in Pennsylvania, but the family's collection of restored Corvettes also made the move to Texas.

Ray Donald Reaves '60, who became a colonel this past November, is now assigned as commandant of the Airlift Operations School in the Military Airlift Command of the Air Force and is stationed at Scott AFB, Ill. Col. Reaves who flew C-130 and T-39 aircraft, lives in Ofallon, Ill., with his wife, Annette, and son, and a daughter is in school at Auburn.

Jack Mathews '60 was named Citizen of the Month last November by the Jupiter-Tequesta, Fla., Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Mathews, a design engineer with Pratt and Whitney, lives in Tequesta with his wife, Barbara Hobart '61, and their three children—Scott, 17, Steven, 13, and Day, 11. He is president of the Jupiter High School Booster Club and has been instrumental in the club's raising its assets for the school's athletic department from an average of $2000 yearly to more than $14,000 last year. Mr. Mathews was honored by the Booster Club at a pep rally last September and presented with a silver tray with his name engraved. He is a deacon and elder at the First United Presbyterian Church and has served as president of the local Auburn Club.

Michael D. Hodges '60 received his Ph.D. in chemical engineering in 1972 from the University of South Carolina, afterward returning to work for Du Pont's Savannah River Laboratory, doing research with centrifugal contractors. In February, Mr. Hodges appeared in the chorus of his tenth opera since 1976. He belongs to the Augusta, S.C., Opera Association. Mrs. Hodges (Bonnie Higginbotham, who attended Auburn from 1959-61) graduated last June from Augusta College, where she was named outstanding student in political science. The Hodges have three children—Kim, 18, a student at South Carolina; Jennifer, 17, who has been accepted at Auburn to study speech pathology; and Joel, 16, a high school sophomore.

George J. Henderson '60, his wife, Stephanie, and their sons, Stephen, 13, and Stuart, 11, live in Nagoya, Japan, where George is a consultant on the Japanese space program. He works for McDonnell Douglas and has been in Japan for 2½ years.

Dr. Charles McArthur '61 has been appointed executive director of the Wiregrass Comprehensive Mental Health Center in Dothan. Dr. McArthur has served as director of the Western Kentucky Regional MH-MR Services and, over the past three years, established the Central Arkansas Mental Health Services System in Little Rock, Ark., where he was executive director.

Dr. J. David Irwin '61, professor and head of the Department of Electrical Engineering at Auburn, has been named a Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, the largest professional organization in the world with over 200,000 members. He joined the Auburn faculty in 1969 after working two years with Bell Telephone Laboratories. Dr. Irwin, a registered engineer in Alabama, Georgia, and Florida, is also a member of the National and Alabama Societies of Professional Engineers, the American Society for Engineering Education, and the Institute for Noise Control Engineering.

William Claude Allison '61 recently received his master's in public administration from Shippensburg State College. He lives in Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Harry Clay Orme '62 has been named manager of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's Freeport, Ill., plant. Mr. Orme joined Goodyear in 1962 as production management trainee at the Gadsden plant, then from 1963-1965 worked as supervisor before being promoted to shift foreman at the Lee Tire and Rubber Company's plant in Conshohocken, Pa. He moved to Kelly-Springfield's Fayetteville, N.C., plant in 1969 and worked his way up to production superintendent by 1974. Mr. Orme has been at the Freeport plant since 1979. He and his wife, Kitty, have five daughters.

Howard L. Claybrook '62 is a supervisor with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation in Columbus, Ga., where he lives with his wife, Jane Henderson, a Mercer graduate, and their son, John, 13.

ADOPTED—A daughter, Maria, 7, by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kneisly (Jane Spruiell '62) of Tupelo, Miss. The Kneislys also have two foster children—two-year-old twins Natalie and Nathan—and two natural children—Craig, 15, and Jody, 12. They have been foster parents for the past six years. Jeannie is a substitute teacher in Tupelo.

Clarence M. Wilson '63 has been appointed corporate controller of WWG Industries, Inc., a subsidiary of TMC Industries, Ltd. Prior to joining TMC, Mr. Wilson was assistant controller for WestPoint Pepperell carpet and rug division in Dalton for seven years. Mr. Wilson, his wife, Yvonne, and their two daughters, Deborah and Lisa, now live in Rome, Ga., the site of WWG's corporate headquarters.

Lawrence Terry Oden '63 has been appointed special agent in charge of the U.S. Secret Service agency's field office in Birmingham. Previously he headed the Secret Service office in San Francisco, Calif. Mr. Oden's responsibilities in Birmingham include supervising both investigative and protective activities throughout 59 Alabama counties. He joined the Secret Service in 1964 as a special agent in Atlanta after serving four years with the Army Security Agency in Hokkaido, Japan. His career has included assignments in the New York office, Presidential Protective Division, Johnson Protective Division, and the Birmingham office. Mr. Oden and his wife, Sandra, have two daughters.

Presidential Evaluation

- (1) The direction and future of Auburn University.
- (2) Academic planning and administration
- (3) Problem solution and decision making
- (4) Fiscal management
- (5) Faculty and staff relations
- (6) Student relationships
- (7) Relationship to external groups
- g. Upon completion of the evaluation, and receipt of the committee's report, the Board of Trustees will take action as it deems appropriate. The Board will publicly acknowledge completion of the evaluation, although details of the report will remain confidential.
- h. Using the completed evaluation as a resource document, the Board of Trustees and the President will agree upon a broad set of goals to be achieved during the period preceding the next formal evaluation.
2. Evaluation of the Chancellor, Vice Presidents and Vice Chancellors. The Board of Trustees will direct the President to develop a plan, consistent with the overall purposes expressed above, for periodic assessment of Auburn University Vice Presidents, and, for the Chancellor and Vice Chancellors at AUM. It is anticipated that specific procedures, particularly regarding scheduling, would parallel those indicated for Presidential evaluation, with appropriate constituencies identified.
3. Evaluation of other administrators. In concert with deans, directors and department heads, the President will determine appropriate methodologies for their evaluation. Primary emphasis will be on identification of constituencies to be consulted, with general procedures following those involved in Presidential evaluation.

Football Signees

The aspect of college football Auburn Coach Pat Dye called "the most important phase" climaxed Feb. 10 with Auburn signing 26 high school standouts who represent what many Auburn people feel to be the best recruiting class on the Plains in years.

With major emphasis on stocking the backfield with quality running backs and sizeable linemen to create sizeable holes for the backs to run through, Auburn signed 10 backs, including the top five rated runners in the state of Alabama, and 16 linemen who average 6'4" and 235.

"We feel good about the players we signed," Dye said after most of the recruiting had been completed. "I believe the kids we recruited can come in and help us as freshmen. We got speed at running back and size in linemen. That's mainly what we were after."

Among Auburn's prized backfield:

Alan Evans, the state's top-rated running back, who gained nearly 1,000 yards for Enterprise High School carrying the ball less than 10 times per game. A Parade All-American, Evans was recruited heavily by both Alabama and Oklahoma.

Vincent Jackson rushed for 1,173 yards and scored 17 touchdowns for McAdory High School as a senior but has made a name for himself in other sports besides football. He set state records at the indoor track meet in Montgomery in January in three events—high jump (6-8), long jump (22-6½), and 60-yard hurdles (7.29 seconds)—and has been offered a pro baseball contract after being named outstanding athlete at a Detroit Tigers tryout camp. Jackson, at 6-1, 218 pounds, runs a 4.3 40-yards.

Tommy Agee was named the Montgomery Advertiser's 1-A Player of the Year after gaining more than 4,000 yards during his career with Maplesville High. He averaged 7.9 yards per carry as a junior, then 8.2 his senior season. He runs a 4.6 40.

Tim Powell, another of the state's top-rated runners, amassed 1,736 yards in leading Greenville High to an 11-1 record and a spot in the quarterfinals of the state playoffs.

Patrick Washington of Murphy High in Mobile was the state's top-rated quarterback, the only signal caller in the top 10 prospects in Alabama this year.

Linemen include:

Gerald Williams of Valley won the state heavyweight wrestling title by pinning all four opponents in the tournament in a total of just over eight minutes, averaging just two minutes per match. The agile 6-4, 246-pounder runs a 4.7 40.

Gerald Robinson spearheaded Notasulga's defense that shut out six opposing offenses last season and 18 over the three years he played varsity. Playing both ways, Robinson caught 15 scoring passes and led the defense in tackles during his junior and senior seasons. He, too, runs a 4.7 40.

Jeff Parks from Gardendale has been called by a Birmingham newspaper "the best tight end prospect ever developed in Alabama." Not bad coming in a state that produced players like Ozzie Newsome and Bart Kraut.

Jeff Neighbors, a linebacker from Thomaston, Ga., was named AA Lineman of the Year in Georgia. He led his team in tackles, and even kicked off for his high school, knocking 30 into the end zone.

David Vinson, whose father is president of the Red Bay area Auburn Club, runs a 4.8 40 and bench presses 345 pounds. He led Red Bay in tackles although most opponents ran away from him.

Jordan Named To College Hall of Fame

Ralph (Shug) Jordan, Auburn's all-time winningest coach and 18th on the NCAA's list, has been selected by the National Football Foundation for induction into the College Football Hall of Fame at King's Island, Ohio. Ceremonies will be held this summer at King's Island and locally at the Nov. 13 Auburn-Georgia football game.

Coach Jordan, whose 25-year record is 176-83-7 and includes the 1957 National Championship, becomes Auburn's fifth representative in the hall of fame. Other members with Auburn affiliations are John Heisman, Mike Donahue, Jimmy Hitchcock, and Walter Gilbert. Jordan is Auburn's first representative since 1956 when Gilbert, a three-time All-American center, was inducted.

Among Jordan's many distinctions is the fact that in 1973 the stadium on the Auburn campus was renamed Jordan-Hare Stadium, marking the first stadium to be named to honor an active coach. Also Jordan, who lettered in three sports as an Auburn athlete between 1929 and 1931, remains the only coach in Southeastern Conference history to win more than 100 games in two different sports. As head basketball coach at both Georgia and Auburn, Jordan won 128 games.

Alabama Sports Hall of Fame Adds Two Former Tigers

Two former Auburn football players were among six men inducted into the Alabama Sports Hall of Fame in ceremonies Feb. 13 at the Birmingham-Jefferson County Civic Center. Bringing to 104 the total Hall membership were Tucker Frederickson and Zeke Smith, both of whom played football for Auburn; Frank Bolling, a former major league baseball player; the late Benny Marshall, a Birmingham sports writer; Elbert Jemison, an amateur golfer; and the late Paul Burnum, a high school football coach.

Zeke Smith, now a Birmingham businessman, was a two-way standout on the Plains between 1957 and 1959. He was a two-time All-American guard who combined powerful blocking with a defensive knack for making the big plays. He won the Outland Trophy in 1958 as the nation's best lineman.

Smith spent five seasons in professional football, two each with the Baltimore Colts and New York Giants and one in the Canadian Football League with the Edmonton Eskimos. He was named an Academic All-American while an Auburn student and has been honored by the Auburn Athletic Department by having the "Zeke Smith Award" which goes to the football team's outstanding defensive player, named for him.

Tucker Frederickson, described by Coach Ralph (Shug) Jordan as "the most complete football player I've seen in the 38 years I've been connected with the game," is considered the last of the great two-way players. He played at Auburn from 1962 through 1964 and twice earned All-American honors—in 1963 as a defensive back and in 1964 as a running back.

Frederickson was used primarily as a blocking back and twice won the Jacobs Blocking Award as the SEC's best blocking back. In 1964 Frederickson finished fourth in Heisman Trophy balloting and was the second player chosen in the ensuing 1965 NFL draft. He spent four injury-plagued seasons as a running back with the New York Giants.

Frederickson, now a New York City businessman, was named Most Valuable Player in the SEC in 1964 by three different organizations—the Nashville Banner, Atlanta Touchdown Club, and Birmingham Quarterback Club.

Ah-h-h-h It's That Time of Year Again: Let's Go Out to The Ballgame

By Sam Hendrix

Ah, springtime in the Sunny South. Moist breezes randomly flail the afternoon's golden warmth then punch and jab Old Glory into a drum solo. The aluminum bleachers at Plainsman Park still bear that tinge of winter cold, but out on the green, scurrying and catching and stretching and throwing that most American of balls, are the man-made signals of spring—the baseball players.

Grab your girlfriend and your cooler—not necessarily in that order—and skip that two o'clock class just this once, die-hard student, and watch a baseball game. It has been this way for years in Auburn, and will continue, for baseball, like those who play it and watch it, is timeless. Baseball is a microcosm—battle strategy of Man against Man or Man against nature's indifferent elements. Baseball is slow as life is slow, at times boring. Then, life's stirring moments parallel the ninth inning, two-out rally. Baseball captivates most youth then gently lets go. Usually.

A week before the season opener, Paul Nix's eyes gleamed to reveal a baseball man approaching another Opening Day. He wore a brown coat and tie in his Memorial Coliseum office, but a pair of Auburn baseball pants hung from a coat rack as if to remind him, or assure him, of his place within the University.

Paul Nix has seen 20 season openers since taking over the head coaching position at Auburn in 1963. His teams, none of which have had losing seasons, have totaled a record of 528-336, four Southeastern Conference titles, and trips to the College World Series in 1967 and 1976. Nix is a five-time SEC Coach of the Year. He has known success.

Lately, though, Auburn's diamond has dipped into the rough. Last year's squad struggled to a 27-27 record, 7-16 in the SEC. Hitters projected at the .300 range were hitting .211 and .225. Nix went to the junior college ranks to sign half of his pitching staff. The coach rates his pitching staff below average. The defense could be good, he says, but not great.

"Offense. . . defense. . . pitching," Nix says are the three important phases of the game. "We think we'll be able to hit the ball. Our defense could be good but not great. And none of our pitchers are proven winners in this league. As a group they're not highly talented but they are the best available players we could get. I have to say they are below average."

Auburn's only hopes for the Tigers' first divisional pennant since 1978 rest in those untested arms and in the fact that the competition for good ballplayers has worked to even out the talent in the SEC. Nix says no single SEC club will dominate the season, and that the conference champion will emerge from the pack by displaying courage to maintain a positive attitude all season long. Plus, he notes, a few bad hops and rainouts at strategic points in time could be factors.

"Most of the teams in our division are rebuilding their pitching staffs for this season," Nix says. "It's all going to come down to who has signed who, which teams get the breaks, and who is able to keep their minds on the game for three months. It may be an average baseball team that wins the title this year."

Auburn returns several players from last year's team, and this year's success will be determined by how they perform. The infield, other than the starters, is thin. Catcher Mike Swain has a strong arm but needs to improve his hitting. The same may be said of first baseman Rodney Dollar, second baseman Doug Gilcrease, short-stop John Metasavage, and third baseman Bob Berry.

The outfield appears a bit more solid. Robert Sorrell, a straight-A pre-med student, plays left field. He has been injured for two years after a productive freshman season. Centerfielder Darryl Wilks, a member of the AU football team, should prove a valuable addition to the Tigers because of his general athletic ability. David Mogentale, a pleasant surprise for Nix in right field last season, is a hustler and has shown great desire to play the game at full tilt.

From among 15 pitchers Nix must choose six or seven starters and a bullpen of capable relief men. Leading candidates include Ward Yerby, Lance Long, Tim McLain, Bill Davis, Mark Saucedo, Gary Smith, and Barry Clements. Neal Mitchell, a signee from a Dothan junior college, has earned the designated hitter spot and will also be used as a relief pitcher.

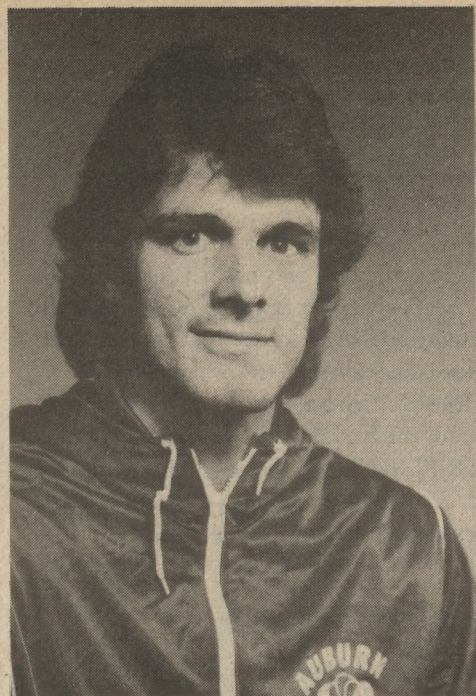

"We don't have a great pitching staff and we don't have great speed," Nix says. "But I don't like dull games, and our players don't like dull games. I think this team will be exciting to watch. Our players have worked well during the pre-season and are optimistic about the team. I don't know what they know that I don't know. But we're going to try and motivate these players to play to their maximum abilities every game."

Tickets to Auburn home games are $3 for adults, free to students with IDs.

Roger Jones

AU's Jones Breaks Four Minute Mile

Auburn senior Roger Jones became the first Southeastern Conference athlete to run a sub-four minute mile indoors when he broke the tape at 3:58.4 in the Nike Mile in Boston Feb. 13. Jones' time was good enough for fifth in the race which featured nine of the nation's top milers, all of whom had previous best times of 4:03 or better.

Auburn's Chris Fox barely missed the four-minute mark, clocking in at 4:00.4 for a seventh place finish. Fox had set the Auburn record in the mile earlier in the year at LSU when he ran a 4:02.58.

Jones was honored for his performance during halftime of the Auburn-LSU basketball game Feb. 17.

In the SEC indoor championships Auburn finished third behind Tennessee and Georgia. The Tigers captured 62 1/2 points but were nipped by Georgia's 71 total and Tennessee's runaway 138 accumulation. All of Auburn's first place finishers established SEC records with their performances, and a total of five Auburn school records were set.

Pole vaulter David Spivey set an SEC and Auburn mark with his vault of 17'11 3/4" and Chris Fox ran 3000 meters in 7:59.1 to set an AU and SEC record. Auburn's 800 meter relay squad of Sergio Qaxaca, Greg Herzog, Calvin Brooks, and Roger Jones set an SEC record with their time of 7:24.81. Jones set another record himself in the 1000 meters by running a 2:23.74. Triple jumper Manny Toppins 51' 1/4 effort set an Auburn record as did freshman Brooks' 47.59 in the 400 meters.

Spivey, Fox, Jones, and Brooks all qualified for the NCAA track championships later this month in Pontiac, Mich.

Men's Swimming

Auburn's ninth-ranked swim team closed out the regular season by demolishing fourth-ranked SMU Feb. 20 in Auburn. The 65-48 win was Auburn's fifth against two defeats, Auburn having beaten Georgia, LSU, Tulane, and perennial SEC power Florida and having lost to Miami and Alabama.

Teri Ptomey Defends Weight Lifting Title

Teri Ptomey defended her title and set three world records in women's powerlifting Feb. 20 and 21 at the Auburn Conference Center as she captured her third national title in the past four years.

Ptomey, a 162-pound sophomore engineering major from Montgomery, established records in the squat (441 pounds), the deadlift (458 pounds), and total weight (1,081 pounds).

Two other Auburn students entered the competition. Jackie McCutcheon, a junior from Huntsville, placed fifth in the heavy-weight division as she set personal bests in all categories. Kathy Sanasocie, a senior from Brockton, N.Y., did not defend her national title in the 132-pound class.

Ptomey trains six days every week at the Strength Research Center at Auburn and is tutored by Jan Todd, one of the center's directors. She won the 148-pound class in her first competition in 1979, then came back to take the 1981 national title in the 165-pound category. She has been lifting weights only since she was 15—she's now 19—and a high school basketball player.

Eighty-eight lifters from across the country were in Auburn for the competition.

Rebounding Frosh

Auburn freshman center Charles Barkley has become the first freshman to lead the SEC in rebounding since AU's Pepto Bolden averaged 11.6 boards per game in 1974-75. Barkley, 6-6, 250 pounds of incredible leaping ability, averages 10 rebounds per game. Barkley also averages 12.8 points per game, making him one of only two freshman in the country—along with Memphis State's Keith Lee—to average in double figures in both scoring and rebounding. His 59.8 field goal shooting percentage ranks sixth in the conference and second on the all-time Auburn one season record. Barkley, who set a record with seven blocked shots in an Auburn home win over LSU, has blocked over 50 shots this season. He was named to the second team All-SEC the first week in March.

Tigers End Season With 14-14 Record

Auburn 83 Kentucky 81
(Yes, Auburn 83 Kentucky 81)

The Tigers finally got some of those breaks that always seem to go the other way in the Feb. 3 overtime upset of ninth ranked Kentucky, an 83-81 thriller in Memorial Coliseum. Odell Mosteller, Charles Barkley, and Darrell Lockhart paced the Auburn attack with 22, 18, and 16 points respectively. Barkley cleared a dozen rebounds and pressured the Wildcats' 6-11 center Melvin Turpin into fouling out early in the second half.

Auburn, trailing by 11 with eight minutes to play, switched from its zone defense to a half court trap and in three minutes had forced enough turnovers to even the score.

Kentucky had a chance to win in regulation but Dirk Minniefield stepped on the baseline with two seconds left as he drove toward the basket. Barkley's jumper at the buzzer missed, sending the game into overtime. Barkley, Mosteller, and Alvin Mumphord scored four points each in the extra period, most of them coming on free throws, to sew up Auburn's first win over Kentucky since 1975, and only the ninth in the 57-game series.

Auburn 82 LSU 72

The Tigers overcame a five point half-time deficit to roar back—thanks to sterling performances by Charles Barkley and Odell Mosteller—to whip LSU 82-72 Feb. 17. The win snapped a three-game losing streak characterized by sloppy, lethargic play and revenged the earlier desperation shot loss to LSU.

Barkley, who said Auburn was "just tired of losing," scored 19 points, including a booming slam dunk that tied the game at 34-34 with 16 minutes to play, grabbed 16 rebounds to maintain his SEC lead in that category, and blocked a school record seven shots—one of which he knocked into the bleachers.

Mosteller continued his excellent outside shooting by hitting eight of 13 shots and totaling a career-high 23 points. He led the second half output which saw Auburn hit 69.6 percent, third highest one half percentage in Auburn history.

Georgia 57 Auburn 56

Charles Barkley's short jump shot at the buzzer missed the mark and the Tigers lost on the road again 57-56 to Georgia. The loss was Auburn's 10th straight conference road defeat, a streak going back to last season's win at Vanderbilt.

Odell Mosteller scored 14 points to lead Auburn, and Barkley added 13.

Alabama 74 Auburn 72

There was no controversy in Alabama's Memorial Coliseum Feb. 24. No blaming the officials, no clock malfunctions. Just a couple of talented basketball teams giving it all they had. Alabama, on freshman Ennis Whatley's two free throws with five seconds left, edged Auburn 74-72.

Darrell Lockhart and Greg Turner scored 15 points apiece to lead the Tigers' efforts, with Odell Mosteller hitting for 13 and Byron Henson for 10. The game was tied with just over six minutes to play, then the lead changed hands seven times. Alabama, which hit only 14 of 31 free throws during the game, was able to hit clutch foul shots in the final few minutes to win for the second time over Auburn this season.

Auburn 56 Tennessee 54

One second glistened on the brand new scoreboard in Memorial Coliseum when junior Alvin Mumphord stepped to the free throw line with a one-and-one Feb. 27. Mumphord sank both and Auburn had a 56-54 upset over SEC-leading Tennessee. The win gave Auburn a 13-13 record, the Tigers' first non-losing mark since going 13-13 in 1976-77.

The final few seconds were heart-stopping. Auburn trailed by two as the clock ticked down. Darrell Lockhart fired from 20 feet with nine seconds left, but missed everything. Miraculously Auburn's Charles Barkley grabbed the air ball, made a quick move along the baseline, and scored as he was fouled. This evened the score and gave Auburn a chance to go up on the free throw. But Barkley missed and Tennessee rebounded. With five seconds left, though, Mumphord slapped the ball from the Vol player and, in the scramble, was fouled with a second left.

Odell Mosteller scored 16 to lead Auburn, with Lockhart adding 14 and Barkley 13. Auburn shot 58.8 percent, its best percentage of the season.

The game was delayed 3 1/2 hours—from 2 to 5:30 p.m.—because the officials, thinking the game was scheduled for 7:30 that night, did not arrive in town until late afternoon.

Auburn 38 Mississippi State 36

Frank Poindexter's 20-foot jumper with five seconds left were the only points scored in overtime as Auburn upended Mississippi State 38-36 in the first round of the Southeastern Conference tournament March 3 in Lexington, Ky.

The teams were deadlocked at 36-36 at the conclusion of regulation time. Auburn controlled the tip to begin the overtime period and passed the ball around the perimeter of the Bulldogs' zone for all but 20 seconds of the overtime. Then, after a timeout, Poindexter dribbled down the left sideline and shot over the State defender.

The win gave the Tigers a 14-13 record before the second round game against home-town favorite Kentucky.

Kentucky 89 Auburn 66

SEC tournament host Kentucky, rebounding from a humiliating season-ending loss to LSU, took its frustrations out on Auburn 89-66 in the second round of the tournament. The loss ended the season for Auburn and gave the Tigers a 14-14 record.

Odell Mosteller opened the game by firing an air ball and things went down hill from there. The Tigers shot just 23 percent in the first half as they hit only seven of 30 shots. Kentucky had opened a 20-point margin by intermission and maintained at least a 12-point difference the rest of the game.

Charles Barkley and Alvin Mumphord led Auburn's offensive efforts as they scored 18 and 16 points respectively.

Lady Tigers Close Regular Season At 24-3

Georgia 66 Auburn 65

Lady Tigers' dreams of repeating as conference champions were strangled by cold first half shooting as 18th ranked Georgia beat Auburn 66-65 Feb. 25 in the first round of the SEC women's tournament in Lexington, Ky.

Auburn, ranked 20th coming into the game, had won six straight and had finished the regular season with a 24-3 record.

Becky Jackson, the sophomore All-American who was named to the All-SEC team, paced the Lady Tiger attack with 24 points. Freshman Debra Larkin scored 15. Angie Hannah, in her final game with Auburn, scored 11. Lori Monroe added seven, senior Renae Halbrooks six.

Georgia pulled away to a 10 point lead late in the first half as Auburn had trouble hitting the basket. Auburn tied the game and even swapped leads with the Bulldogs midway through the second half, but Georgia shot well and forced a few key turnovers late to advance in the tournament.

Gymnastics

Auburn's gymnastics team defeated East Tennessee State 136.4 to 127.5 to close out the home season. Auburn stood at 9-5 overall before heading into the regional championships in mid-March at Athens, Ga.

Jackson Named All-SEC

Auburn's Becky Jackson, a 6-2 sophomore who has dominated practically every game she's played in her two years on the Plains, has been selected to the All-SEC women's basketball team. She is Auburn's lone representative on the 12-member squad.

Jackson, from Franklin, La., was named to Kodak's All-Region team last year in addition to being chosen a member of the American Women's Sports Federation's All-American team. She was also selected to the SEC All-Tournament team while being named Most Valuable Player in last year's tournament. This season she has led the Lady Tigers in scoring with a 16.2 average and rebounding with an 8.8 average. She has accomplished this despite missing five games with a knee injury.

Jackson has ranked in the top 10 in the conference all season in scoring and rebounding. Her high point total came against UAB when she scored 36.

Auburn senior co-captains Angie Hannah and Renae Halbrooks were both among the 27 players nominated for the All-SEC team, but were not selected among the final dozen.
